McCOMB, Miss. (AP)—Three explosions "like gunshots, only much louder" damaged a civil rights "freedom house" in this southwest Mississippi city today.

The explosions were one of a series of attacks on the house, which were slightly injured. Others were asleep in the house.

The McComb Police Department sent units to the scene and a fire truck stood by until it was determined there was no fire.

"We are making a full investigation," said an FBI spokesman in the agency's New Orleans office, which covers southern Mississippi. The spokesman said agents had not determined what type of explosives were used.

Ed Rudd, a spokesman for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, said the house contained an explosive of some sort.

The house was located in the Negro section of McComb. We think the three cans were unexploded," Rudd said.

George Green, 20, a Greenwood Negro and SNCC staff worker who was in the house, said he heard "three rapid explosions in succession like gunshots, only much louder."

Curtis Hays, 21, a McComb Negro and also a SNCC staff worker, received cuts on the face and body.

Green said the living room and a bedroom in the house were damaged and a gaping hole was in the wall of the bedroom where Hays was sleeping.

Also in the room was Dennis Greeney, 21, a Stanford University student, who said he received cuts. Sweeney is one of 500 college students, mostly white persons, who volunteered for civil rights work in Mississippi for the summer.

Attorney Feels Cudes Are Example

Municipal Judge Nabors Shaw of Mena talked to the Hempstead County bar association Tuesday evening at the association's monthly meeting at the Hotel Barlow.

Judge Shaw talked on the Archie Cude case that has created so much interest recently. The Cude family lives near Mena and their religious beliefs prompt them to refrain from having their children vaccinated and the school board of Mena will not permit the children to attend public school without first being vaccinated. Mr. Cude has been arrested several times for failing to keep his children in public school.

Judge Shaw pointed out that a great number of unvaccinated children attend Mena Public schools and that in a neighboring school the majority of children have not been vaccinated. He further pointed out that Cudes being outstanding citizens with a reputation of honesty, integrity, and self reliance, and that some resented their self reliant ways and this particular family was chosen for the prosecution.

However, he pointed out that he personally favored and would like to see the children in school but that he became Mr. Cude's attorney because he seemed the only one available in court when the judge advised Mr. Cude to get himself an attorney.

Judge Shaw pointed out that some of our states do not require smallpox vaccination and that it has been abolished in Ireland, England, Senator F. C. Crow, local attorney, arranged for the program and introduced the speaker.

Goldwater Foes Say His Policy Is 'Can't Win'

By JACK BELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton's backers hammered at Sen. Barry Goldwater's towering claim on the GOP presidential nomination with a can't-win assault today, as prospects for a civil rights fight dwindled.

Goldwater's declaration in an interview published in a German news magazine that "as of now" no Republican could defeat President Johnson was described by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., as an admission that the Arizona senator is resigned to losing in November if he becomes the GOP presidential nominee at next week's convention.

Scott, campaign director for the Pennsylvania governor, told a news conference Tuesday that "I'm afraid they (the Goldwater backers) don't really believe they can win."

"You can't give up before the campaign starts," Scott said. "Governor Scranton believes that he can beat President Johnson. He has won before against odds and he'll win again."

Goldwater said in the interview that, as of today, no other Republican had a chance of defeating Johnson in the South. He added that while he wasn't saying that he could do so at the moment, "come election day there is going to be another horse race." He made it clear in this respect that he was speaking not only of the South but the nation at large.

Scranton, scheduled to arrive here for a mid-afternoon airport rally and news conference, said before he left Chicago that Goldwater's people are using "every conceivable kind of pressure and threat" to keep the nomination away from him.

Appearing on a national NBC television program, the Pennsylvania governor said: "They are trying to create a political steamroller unparalleled for its toughness, its callousness, its total disregard for the opinion of rank and file Republicans."

Contending that "every survey taken" shows he is preferred by Republicans as the nominee over the Arizona senator, Scranton continued: "Senator Goldwater's managers know this, so they have undertaken a no-holds-barred campaign to see to it that the delegates at the convention do not reflect the wishes of the people back home."

In the same vein, Scott said the Goldwater delegates are "under the iron whip of discipline" not to demonstrate in any way that they and others already in San Francisco are, as he put it, "the most unhappy group of delegates ever gathered for a convention."

Murphy Calls Self a Conservative

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Dean Murphy of Hope formally opened a campaign headquarters here, labeled himself a conservative, and attacked the voting record of Rep. Oren Harris D-Ark., Tuesday.

Murphy criticized Harris, his Democratic primary opponent, for voting in favor of a pay increase of $7,500 a year for congressmen.

"An increase like that would bankrupt every business in the Fourth District," Murphy said, referring to the district Harris represents.

Murphy, operator of a truck stop, said he wanted to balance the national budget and pay off the national debt. He was critical of federal spending for "magnificent edifices," foreign aid, and a survey of national park tourists.

Washington's Power Lashed by Romney

By LEWIS GULICK

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Gov. George Romney of Michigan criticized today concentration of power in Washington. He called on Republican party platform drafters to remember "the forgotten man," the ordinary American, the consumer.

In his prepared statement to the GOP platform committee Romney also dealt with the issues of civil rights legislation and "extremism." In doing so, he avoided phrases over which backers of two leading candidates for president—Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. William W. Scranton—have been scrapping.

Romney praised Republican leadership in helping enact the civil rights law—but said nothing as to its constitutionality.

On the issue of what he called "purveyors of hate," he said, "There is no place in either of our great political parties" for wearers of black or red shirts. Romney mentioned no organizations by name.

Some supporters of Scranton have talked of making a major convention fight over a proposed denunciation of the John Birch Society.

Romney's proposed platform said the Republican party "unequivocally repudiates extremists and rejects their effort to infiltrate or attach themselves to our party or its candidates."

Romney shared the platform spotlight today with former Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who is supporter of Scranton's effort to overcome the long lead Goldwater has toward the Republican presidential nomination.

Romney spoke of a strong federal effort in behalf of consumers.

One effort in this field, Romney said, should be "an immediate and complete review of excessive concentration of power in the collective bargaining field, and of the conflict between our antitrust laws and our labor laws," undertaken either by a presidential commission or a joint committee of Congress.

Cotton Mkt. News Service Available

Hempstead County cotton farmers are now eligible for cotton classification and market news services for the 1964 season, according to E. R. McInnes, Officer in Charge of the Cotton Division's Classing Office, Agricultural Marketing Service in Little Rock.

The county-wide group application for these services was submitted by Calvin J. Caldwell, Hempstead County Agent, and was approved July 6.

L. G. Hampton of Hope, will serve as representative of the Hempstead County Cotton Improvement Group, Fred Glanton, also of Hope, will serve as president of the group, and Moss Howe of Washington, is the alternate representative.

The free classification and market news services are provided for farmers under the Smith-Doxey Act of 1937. Farmers in Hempstead County had 2,410 samples classed under this program last year.

Pine Bluff Turns Down 2 Proposals

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Proposals to establish a city manager government and a public housing authority were rejected by a record turnout of voters in a special election here Tuesday.

City manager, lost 4,532-3,338 and the housing authority was turned down 5,435-2,302.

Mayor Office Lites headed opposition to the city manager question, which was posed and pushed by Russell Liebigenth, a retail merchant.

Pine Bluff became the seventh Arkansas city to reject city manager. The others are El Dorado, Jonesboro, Paragould, Stuttgart, Jacksonville and Fort Smith.

Six cities—Little Rock, Texarkana, Hope, Camden, Brinkley and Newport—have city manager governments. Dumas has the mayor-council form of government, but also employs a city manager.

Alston Says Callison a Fine Player

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK AP — "He's beat us enough. I figured he owed me something."

Walt Alston was laughing. His National Leagueers had just whipped the American League 7-4 in Tuesday's All-Star game, tying the lengthy series at 17 victories apiece with one tie.

The player he was talking about was Philadelphia's Johnny Callison, one of Alston's supplementary selections.

Callison, who hit two homers in two games against Alston's Los Angeles Dodgers recently, capped the National League's decisive four-run rally in the last of the ninth with a three-run homer.

"Callison's a great all-around player, that's one of the reasons I picked him," said Alston. "Then, too, I wanted some more left-handed hitting. Besides, the way he's hit against us, he owed me one."

Callison paid the debt with one swing — his first against Boston's Dick (The Monster) Radatz in the ninth.

"I was glad nobody said anything when I went up there," said Callison. "It might have scared me. Radatz is sneaky fast, so was just looking for the first pitch to come over."

Before Callison came up before the crowd of 50,850, Radatz had struck out five in 2 2-3 innings for a total of 10 in 4 2-3 innings in two consecutive All-Star games.

"I threw him a low fast ball in the seventh inning," explained Radatz. "He hit the only ball to the outfield off me, and I thought I'd try him up high."

Callison's homer also beat his former boss, Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox who handled the American League team.

For Lopez, it was something special. He has been in seven All-Star games and in the losing dressing room afterward each time.

"For a while I thought I was going to bust my string," Lopez said. "Everything worked out as we wanted it — we had a lead and Radatz to finish up. But I didn't plan on Willie Mays as the leadoff hitter and I didn't want him to walk."

But Willie did, on a 3-2 pitch and proceeded to steal second.

Orlando Cepeda then lifted a pop up that fell back of first as Mays streaked for third, slid in, picked himself up, shot home and slid in.

The throw home by first baseman Joe Pepitone hopped on one bounced over the head of catcher Elston Howard and the National League had tied the score 3-3.

Delivered Only Important Mail

WATER MILL, N.Y. (AP) — After delivering mail for 30 years, postman Lorin F. Shipper apparently decided to deliver only the important-looking letters and let the rest pile up.

Authorities found two tons of unopened mail, mostly periodicals, circulars and advertising matter, in Shipper's garage and in some ancient automobiles parked on his lawn. It was about marked 1953 and 1954. About 10 per cent was first-class mail.

Roy Peterson, Southampton postmaster, said there were no complaints of missed mail. "The carrier must have delivered all the mail he thought important and just put the rest away," he said Tuesday.

Shipper, 75, who retired in 1953, told postal officials he couldn't recall how the leftover mail got there.

Peterson said that since the five-year statute of limitations

Revolution in Russia Seems Faded

EDITOR'S NOTE — The old revolutionary spark seems to be disappearing in Russia; the newer generation is less fanatic. Preston Grover, Associated Press chief of bureau in Moscow for five years, tells why in the following third of four articles.

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet revolution gives much evidence of running down.

That is a development perhaps as pleasing to some Soviet people as to the people in the West.

This doesn't mean that the Soviet Union has stopped growing. It is growing quite fast. But it does mean that especially among the young, the zeal of the Founding Fathers for the pure faith is no longer what it was.

Premier Khrushchev himself gave dramatic evidence of that when he told a group of Hungarian factory workers that people expected, and should get, more than just enthusiastic party talk. They also wanted more goulash. "Goulash communism" as a catch phrase now is heard here, very privately.

Americans should not be astonished that much of the fanatic zeal is gone. They have seen the same thing in pioneer settlements in the West where religion was the dominant factor. The circumstances and the motives are different, but the experiences have a certain parallel.

A few of the people who had struggled through the hard years before and after the revolution of 1917 still are in government, but many of those now in authority never saw Lenin. He died in 1924.

When Khrushchev set out to destroy the image of Stalin, it was a "purge" to clean up the party history. But it shook the faith of many.

The days of the old "barbaric fighters" have given way to another generation is waiting to take over.

The glow has gone even from some of the heroes of those days when Communist doctrine called for weakening family ties so the influence of the party and government would be felt more. That, too, has changed. The family no longer is a thing to be despised, but to be encouraged and respected.

The state and party still make themselves felt as the basis of life in the Soviet Union. In children's pioneer organizations, in the Young Communist League, the young of the land still are indoctrinated with Communist precepts.

But there is increasing cynicism about the constant new drives of communism. In 1961, Khrushchev outlined at the party congress the project for bringing full-fledged communism to the country in 22 years.

The party editorialists pulsed with enthusiasm, but the project brought audible moans from many Russians.

"I'll be an old man then, still poor, like my father," said a Russian salaried man, with a wife and one child.

With two generations already sacrificed to the building of communism, the present population is not delighted at the prospect of seeing a third generation go through the poverty mill. Increasingly they are able to make their voices heard, in a way never to have been thought of under Stalin.

The sons and grandsons of the same farmers are simply not producing, and the government and party now are offering more and more inducement for individuals to work harder. Farmers are still the downtrodden part of the population.

All this doesn't justify any conclusion that communism itself is dead. Any Communist leader can point to great accomplishments in the country since 1917.

It is a safe bet that if the Russian people were asked to vote for or against communism, they would vote overwhelmingly for it. It wouldn't be 99.45 per cent, the way it is in the elections, but would be a monster vote. It is now their way of life. Next: After Khrushchev, what?

Any Photographer Could Tell You

CLARKSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Mary Giacomini, 23, came home from photography school intent on getting a picture of a wild black bear that had roamed this area for weeks.

For days Mary carried her camera faithfully, awaiting the face-to-face confrontation. Patience bore her nothing, so she decided to saddle a horse and track the bear through the countryside.

She headed for the barn. There stood the bear.

"For the past three decades we have seen the proof of concentrated power in the collective bargaining field, encouraged by a fundamental conflict between our labor laws, which foster monopoly, and our antitrust laws, which exist to preserve competition."

Romney said right-to-work laws, which prohibit contracts under which employees must join unions, are not the answer "because they deny to workers the same organization rights exercised by stockholders."

He said it was time to face the problem in the spirit of Theodore Roosevelt, who moved against trusts, and to "put the consumer back in the driver's seat economically."

Romney said what he called the trend toward concentrating power in Washington must be met by enabling state governments to handle more problems and requiring them to do a better job.

The platform committee today reached the midpoint in its pre-convention hearings. Thursday and Friday, Scranton and Goldwater take the stand.

Lodge's appearance underlined foreign policy in the platform debate after two days of emphasis on civil rights left that issue still unresolved.

The 1960 Republican vice presidential nominee and ambassador to the United Nations during the Eisenhower administration, Lodge resigned as ambassador to South Viet Nam last month after nearly a year in the job under the Johnson-Kennedy administrations. He said he was returning to push Scranton for president.

So far foreign policy has not been the bone of much contention among the string of GOP platform witnesses. In general, the Republican speakers have attacked what they label as President Johnson's vacillation and expediency in handling foreign affairs.

Lodge, however, has maintained that the campaign against Red guerrillas in South Viet Nam is on the right track and can be won if the Washington and Saigon governments keep at it.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, now boosting Scranton after dropping out of the presidential race himself, jabbed indirectly at the front-running Goldwater on both foreign and domestic issues in speaking to the plank writers Tuesday.

But Goldwater's representative on the platform group, Arizona Rep. John J. Rhodes, said afterwards "I thought he (Rockefeller) showed a wide area of agreement among Republicans."

Ohio Rep. William M. McCulloch, chairman of the platform panel which heard civil rights witnesses Tuesday and an architect of the new law, said he believes there is still room between the Goldwater and Scranton positions to work out wording endorsing the law.

Goldwater voted against the civil rights bill in the Senate, saying major parts of it are unconstitutional. He says he would enforce the law as president because that is the chief executive's duty.

The platform group's executive committee held its first meeting Tuesday night and authorized drafters to start work on the document.

Barry to Keep Tab on Everything

By MORRIE LANDSBERG
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A push-button headquarters crammed with electronic gadgets to see all that can be seen will guide Sen. Barry Goldwater's bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

No candidate has ever equipped himself so well to keep tab on what's going on at a political convention.

Not only that: His committee has purchased time on San Francisco television and radio stations to provide periodic reports to delegates and alternates as well as to the public.

Goldwater is a communications hobbyist, with ham radio stations in Washington and Phoenix. While he hasn't had time to do any tinkering here, he undoubtedly will be happy with the system set up by his staff for next week's Republican convention.

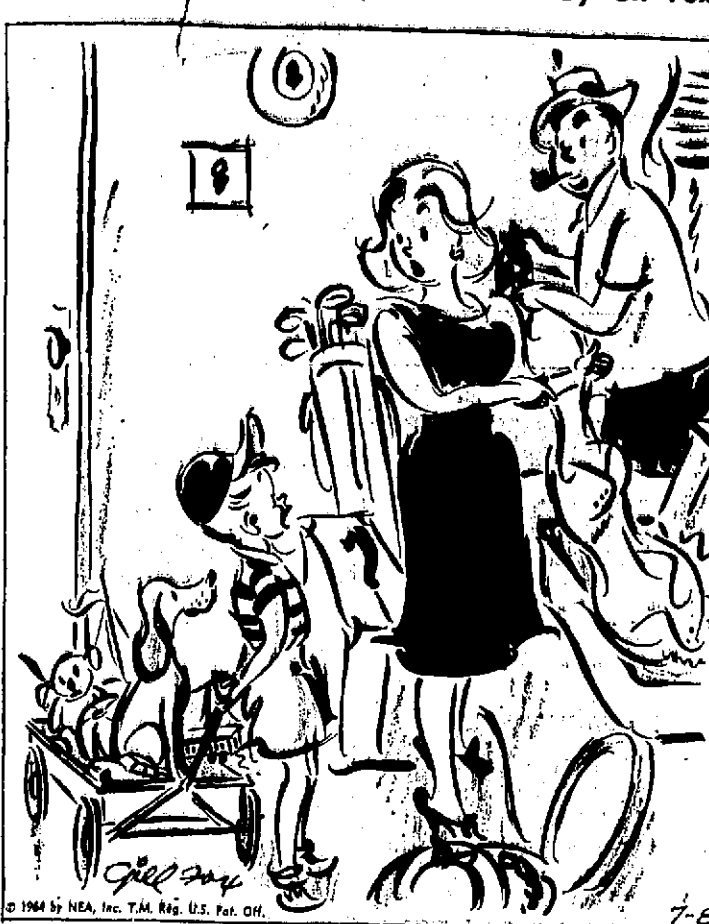

The command post is the off-limits 15th floor of the Mark Hopkins Hotel, where the senator will live in a gold-carpeted three-room suite with a sweeping view of San Francisco's hills and bay.

The system includes: Television monitors for closed circuit cameras that will show where staff members are at the hotel and, when the scene of action changes, at the Cow Palace. A special board will record their whereabouts.

A short-wave communications system between the Cow Palace and the Mark Hopkins with some sort of scrambling device to keep the messages secret.

A telephone system for regional campaign directors.

A back-up walkie-talkie setup just in case the other devices break down.

Staff members will be able to reach Goldwater in his suite on a special panel telephone.

Meany to Block Right to Work

By NEIL GILBERT

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Meany, AFL-CIO president, reportedly will urge Republican platform-makers Wednesday to pledge strict civil rights enforcement and to repudiate Sen. Barry Goldwater's right-to-work views.

Meany, who is leaving today to appear before the GOP platform committee in San Francisco, will ask that party campaign on the promise to put enforcement of the new rights law in the hands of "people who mean business," sources said.

Shaping the civil rights plank will be one of the committee's toughest chores.

Although most congressional Republicans voted for the civil rights bill, Goldwater, who has the party's presidential nomination almost in his grasp voted against it. He argued that he believed some of its provisions were unconstitutional. But the Arizona senator has said he would enforce the law if elected president.

On another issue, Meany will ask the committee to pledge repeal of a section of federal labor law which permits the states to enact right-to-work laws, the sources said.

These laws, on the books in 20 states including Arizona, outlaw union shop contracts between labor and management.

Under the union shop, a worker must join the union after he is hired. In the right-to-work states, he does not have to join even though the union bargains for him along with its members.

Goldwater has introduced legislation, sharply opposed by the AFL-CIO, to ban the closed shop except in states which permit it under their own laws.

This would reverse the effect of present federal law and put the burden on unions to campaign for the closed shop in all 50 states.

Under the closed shop, all ds Proposed at Increase

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Little Rock Chamber of Commerce has suspended action on a proposed increase in freight on furniture items shipped by motor carriers between southern and southwestern states.

A spokesman for the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce said the rate increase was suspended until a hearing can be held. The suspension was requested by the chamber.

The increase was proposed by trucking companies of the Southern Motor Carriers Rate Conference which operates in the area south of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi River.

The increase would have become effective July 1.

Cites Responsibilities

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Richard B. Addison, assistant attorney general, said Tuesday that a sheriff has the same responsibilities in the school election that he has in a special or general election. The opinion went to Herman D. McCormick, sheriff and collector of Yell County. Among the responsibilities are the issuance of an election proclamation and the distribution of election supplies and ballot boxes.

Wedding Party

Holds A Cook-Out In June Miss Millie Flowers and Larry Gaines were entertained several times before their wedding on June 14. A cook-out for the wedding party was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Allison on June 12.

At the informal party in the yard of the Allison home, hamburgers and hot dogs with all the guests were served to the bride and groom. A cake for the kitchen was presented to the couple.

Wedding Rehearsal

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Gaines entertained with a dinner at the Diamond for the Flowers-Gaines wedding party after the rehearsal on Saturday, June 13. Pink carnations decorated the U-shaped table where a 3-course dinner was served to 26.

The bride-elect, Miss Millie Flowers, was attired in a red linen sheath, and she pinned white carnations at her shoulder. She and her fiancé, Larry Gaines, chose that time to present gifts to members of the wedding.

Bachelor Breakfast

A Bachelor Breakfast for Larry Gaines was held at the Diamond on June with Larry Brown as host. Pretty arrangements of summer flowers were seen on the table.

Besides the honored guest, others attending were Buddy Putman, Charles Ray Clark, Roy Allison, and the host.

200 Attend Annual July 4 Picnic

The annual 4th of July Picnic was held at the Hope Country Club on Independence Day with a crowd estimated at over 200 in attendance. American flags, red, white, and blue flowers, and other appropriate decorations filled the clubhouse, where a delicious potluck supper and fellowship were enjoyed by members, their families, and invited guests.

Host couples were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Albritton, W. C. Bruner, Jr., Harry Cagle, Frank Carver, Harold Eakley, Vincent Foster, Guy Grigg, Forrest Hair, Herbert Stephens, Bill Taylor, and Bill Tolleson.

Bridge Club Meets

Mrs. Tom Kinser was hostess to her Friday Bridge Club on July 3, and she used pretty seasonal flowers as decorations. High scorer for the afternoon was Mrs. Charles Harrell.

Duplicate Club Meets

R. L. Broach and Mike Kelly took top scoring honors at the Hope Duplicate Bridge Club meeting Monday, July 6 at the Hope Country Club. In second place were Mrs. Harry Hawthorne and Mrs. Marie Hendrix. A tie for third position was between the couples of Mrs. R. L. Broach and Miss Elizabeth Bridwell, Dr. George Wright and Luther Holloman.

"DEAR ABBY"

ASK FOR HELP!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: My daughter is 15. She ran off with her boy friend, who is 18. They called us the next day from another state and said they were married. They stayed away ten days and then wired me for money to get their car fixed so they could come home. I sent them the money and they came home. When I questioned them about their marriage their answers were very vague, so I became suspicious and asked to see their marriage certificate. They said they lost it. I told them they were not going to share a bedroom in my home unless they could prove they were man and wife. The boy's mother let them stay at her house, and said she trusted them. The boy quit school, can't hold a job and he talked my daughter into quitting school to run off with him. I don't think they ever got married, and it wouldn't surprise me if my daughter were in a family way. We are good Christian people, and this is a disgrace. What should I do?

SORROWING MOTHER

Dear Mother: Ask your clergyman to talk to the young people. And the boy's mother, too. If they are not married, perhaps it would be better if they stayed that way until the boy grew up.

Dear Abby: A friend of mine sold her car last year, and now when she needs transportation, she never calls a cab, she calls me. I know for a fact that I have saved her over $100 in cab fares. She has never once offered to pay for gasoline or parking. She just hops out of the car, and says, "Thanks a lot." Last week I got news that some house guests were coming. I was pressed for time so I asked this friend of mine if she would bake me a cake. (She is a very good baker.) She said, "Why don't you order one from Mrs. X? She's in the business." I felt as if I had been slapped in the face! What would you have done?

SPEECHLESS

Dear Speechless: I would have called Mrs. X and given her the order. And the next time your "friend" calls for a free ride, refer her to a cab company, which is "in the business."

Dear Abby: Will you please explain the difference between Formal, Informal and Semi-Formal attire for men who want to be properly dressed? Everyone I ask has a different opinion. Thank you.

IN DOUBT

Dear In: According to Mr. B. Wien, President of the National Association of Retail Clothing Manufacturers, Formal is the ultimate in formal attire. It calls for white tie and tails, and is strictly for after 6 p.m. Informal calls for a suit. Preferably dark. (No tweed or sports coat.) Semi-Formal requires a tuxedo—some times called "black tie." Dark tuxedos are proper for all-year round wear, but from Decoration Day until Labor Day, white or pastel tuxedo jackets are also proper.

Confidential To S.S.J.: Accept the fact that gratitude sometimes has a short memory. It's the same old story, "the dentist gets paid last because the tooth has stopped aching."

The future bridegroom is a 1958 graduate of Lordsburg High School. After four years of service with the U. S. Navy, he is now a student at New Mexico Western University in Silver City.

The wedding will be an event of August 9 in Hope at Our Lady of Good Hope Catholic Church.

Says Board Member Can Do Business

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett held Wednesday that businessmen serving on city boards or commissions can do business with the city as long as they do not deal with the board or commission on which they serve.

The opinion went to City Atty. Curtis Ridgway of Hot Springs. He asked for it after four Hot Springs businessmen resigned their posts on various boards and commissions.

The resignations came after the Garland County Grand Jury recommended that steps be taken to curb what it called violation of state law regarding sales to the city by elected or appointed officials.

Ike Doesn't Want to Run His Party

NEW YORK (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower is quoted by Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review, as saying, "The last thing in the world I wanted to do in my retirement was to try to run a political organization or give orders or pull strings."

The July 11 issue of the magazine carries an account of an interview that Cousins had with the former president at his Gettysburg, Pa., home June 26. Cousins wrote that "Republican presidential aspirants and their supporters have beset Eisenhower in attempts 'to capture the favor of a man who has no desire to direct or become enmeshed in partisan political warfare.'"

Eisenhower is quoted as saying: "Trying to dictate who the man should be who would offer himself to the voters for the most important job in this country is completely out of keeping with what I want to do—or, indeed, what I believe anyone has the right to do."

Cousins reported: "He said he was not a king maker. He didn't believe the party was a one-man affair. One-man rule of anything was obnoxious to him."

Plan to Trade TV Channels Is Accepted

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Educational Television Commission accepted Monday a proposal by KATV, Channel 7, to trade Channel 7 for the commission's assigned Channel 2.

Along with Channel 7, KATV included in the trade $282,240 in broadcasting equipment, land and cash which comprises the station's Woodson transmission facilities.

The station already has donated its antenna at Woodson to the commission effective upon completion of a new transmitter and tower in Jefferson County near Hensley.

Robert Doubleday, KATV general manager, said the channel swap would in no way effect plans for the new facility. Doubleday said KATV, as a result of the trade, would increase its range about eight miles and would pick up approximately 10,000 viewers.

Commission Chairman T. E. Tyler said the state would develop a $750,000 television network for an outlay of $150,000 as its result.

The swap must be approved by the Federal Communications Commission.

Tyler said the switch probably would mean a delay of four or five months past the target date of January 1 for educational television programming.

The normal wait for the FCC to act on the request must also be considered, Tyler said.

He said the commission, in order to avoid complications, would continue to process its channel 2 license as though no switch were involved.

The commission could withdraw in favor of KATV if the FCC approved the trade, he said.

Tyler said the commission "could not turn down a $300,000 gift."

The KATV gift would help broaden the commission's network by providing the funds to shift equipment and facilities of KFOY at Hot Springs to Fayetteville to establish Channel 13.

The state already has the tower and studio equipment of KFOY.

The commission also has asked the FCC to split Channel 9 between Jonesboro and Arkansas State College, and a relay station between Hope and Prescott.

The Fayetteville station, Tyler said, would cost about $300,000 and the other two stations about $150,000 each.

Plans call for programs to originate mainly at Little Rock and Fayetteville with some programming scheduled at Jones-

State 4th in Export Cotton

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arkansas ranks fourth among states in producing extra cotton for export at world prices, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

A department report showed that only 10,189 farms of about 630,000 producing cotton in the U.S. applied for permission to grow cotton for export in excess of their basic acreage allotment.

In Arkansas, 229 farms requested permission for 4,173 extra acres for export at world prices—expected to be about $32.50 a bale for 1964 cotton.

U.S. Cotton moves abroad under a government subsidy paid to exporters designed to enable them to pay U.S. supported prices and to sell abroad at the lower world prices.

Churches to Fight Spa Amendment

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Five Protestant churches drew battle lines Tuesday for a war against a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize gambling in Garland County.

The proposal will be on the November general election ballot. Churchmen planned to start their fight in September.

About 120 ministers and laymen from all over Arkansas met at First Methodist Church here to organize Churches against Gambling.

A spokesman said the new group represent 3,000 Assembly of God, Christian, Methodist, Presbyterian and Southern Baptist churches.

The churches will take up a special collection on Sept. 20—designated "Anti-Gambling Sunday"—to be used in an advertising fight against the proposed amendment.

The Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce, which backs the proposal, has announced plans to collect $125,000 for an advertising campaign to seek passage.

Only the southeastern part of the state would not be covered by the network, Tyler said. And, he said, this could be filled in after network is on the air by booster stations costing only a few thousand dollars.

Tyler said he was first approached with the offer by KATV last month. The commission met to consider it on June 26 and then recessed to give commissioners a chance to think about it.

The decision to make the swap was made at a commission meeting in Little Rock.

Anniversary of Hiccup Victim

By JACK STILLMAN

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Today is a happy anniversary for Lacey McDonald. It is the anniversary of her bout with the hiccups.

The 38-year-old red-haired mother of three says she couldn't be happier. The hiccups stopped about a week ago.

Mrs. McDonald received thousands of letters, telegrams and telephone calls after an Associated Press story described her plight. Most suggested home remedies for curing the hiccups.

The remedy which apparently cured her came from a drug gist for whom she now works. The pharmacist, Roy Faith, said: "I just gave her a drug which is commonly used. I cannot say what it was because I am not a physician and I cannot prescribe. The important thing is that she is cured."

Whether the hiccups have gone for good is a question, but Mrs. McDonald says this is the longest period of time she has been able to breathe with ease in a year.

"You can't imagine how much a little thing to be able to breathe without hiccuping. This was the worst year of my life."

Mrs. McDonald was a waitress until she lost her job because waitresses aren't supposed to hiccup constantly.

of the proposal.

The Christian Civic Foundation, an inter-denomination group, mapped plans for the new organization, then bowed out of the fight because it is a tax-exempt body and cannot take part in politics.

The churches will hold an "anti-gambling workshop" here Sept. 15-16 to coordinate the drive, which will include rallies, parades and all-night prayer sessions.

Telephone teams will try to convince voters to turn down the proposal. A poll tax registration campaign will be waged in each church.

"Any army without weapons cannot win a battle," said Tom Digby, a North Little Rock attorney who was one of the delegates to the organizational meeting.

"The Christians' weapon in this battle is the qualified voter," he said. "Every local church, to equip its army to fight this battle, must see that every member is a registered voter."

Digby said that if the proposal is passed into law it would be "a rebuff to the Christian people of Arkansas and a reflection on our Christian ideals and dedication."

Baker Report to Be Filed Today

WASHINGTON (AP) - A politically divided Senate Rules Committee files Democratic and Republican reports today on Bobby Baker's money-making dealings.

Baker resigned under fire last Oct. 7 as secretary of the Senate's Democratic majority after a $350,000 damage suit against him and others by a local vending machine company spotlighted his outside business dealings.

The Rules Committee's investigation of whether his activities conflicted with his official duties or involved other improprieties reached a climax when Baker invoked his Fifth Amendment protection against possible self-incrimination and refused to answer questions. Testimony received by the committee showed that Baker, a one-time Senate page boy from Pickens, S.C., claimed to have acquired a fortune of more than $2 million before he resigned his $19,600-a-year post.

A MEAT GRINDER

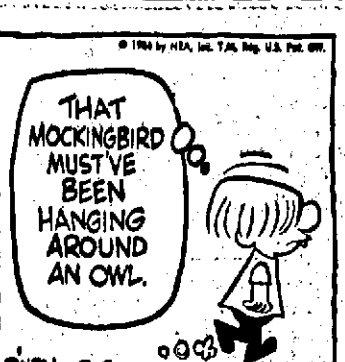

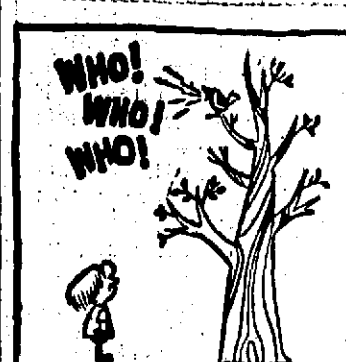

By J. Ervin Deane

Old Henry Taylor could squeeze a nickel so hard the Indian on one side wound up riding the buffalo on the other. His good wife Emily had been embarrassed at the annual Christmas party, where the women proudly displayed their gifts of wrist-watches and earrings, to have to state that she had received a meat grinder.

In the silence that followed, the forced admission, Ruth Dean tittered, "Oh, you mean one of those new electric ones. Aren't they wonderful?" Every one in the room, including Ruth knew Henry never purchased anything electric that was available in a manual model. Electricity cost four cents per kilowatt hour, whereas idle hands were the devil's helpers, as Emily well knew, having been informed of the fact several million times. Emily sighed and answered Ruth by agreeing that yes, electric meat grinders were wonderful, and someone then mercifully changed the subject.

In the past few years the men in their circle of friends had stopped giving their wives clothes dryers and electric frying pans and now, presumably because their children were grown, had shifted to jewelry, perfumes and even small fur pieces. Emily had not been so unrealistic as to hope for a small fur piece. What she had hoped for was a big sewing machine. Her treadle model was old when

SHORT RIDS

Henry bought it at auction and lately she found using it extremely tiring. She made her own clothes, and didn't mind, but what a joy it would be, she often thought, to be able to zip right along with no worries about knotting or skipping. Just before Christmas when she and Henry went to town for the weekly grocery-buying, she paused with him in front of the sewing machine shop and admired the sleek cabinet models. But her dream ended when Henry did not take the hint. Emily naturally continued to do her needlework on the old model without complaining.

Now that it was all over, somehow Emily couldn't even bring herself to care. She was too old for caring—and too tired for sewing. The children were grown and why did she need pretty clothes? She hadn't felt well enough to attend the New Year's party at the neighbors. Henry had gone alone at her insistence. He was easily persuaded because he could eat a piece of cheese and a cracker instead of supper and wait for the sumptuous feed later on.

In the following weeks, Emily felt worse instead of better, so she had a friend take her to see Dr. Miller. She didn't tell Henry. Henry wouldn't mind if it turned out she had some rare, fatal disease. But if Dr. Miller prescribed one of his usual iron tonics, Emily knew Henry would grumble that he could just as well have bought her a patent medicine remedy.

Dr. Miller's examination was thorough and when it was over he assured her all she needed was a few days in the hospital and some shots to build her up. So Emily went home to pack and then right to the hospital while Henry was plowing the north 40.

In the quiet, dignified atmosphere of the hospital room Henry was forced to do his screaming.

Took 31 Years for National to Catch American

by JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It took the National League 31 years to draw even with the American in All-Star warfare Tuesday and in the end it was an ex-American Leaguer who did it.

Wondrous Willie Mays, as usual, starred in the field and on the bases Billy Williams and Ken Boyer smashed home runs. Jim Bunning and Juan Marichal pitched superbly. But the hero of the National's 74 triumph was Johnny Callison, who was not even voted on the All-Star team.

Callison, a personal pick by Manager Walter Alston, came up in the bottom of the ninth inning with two out, two on and the score tied at 44. He walloped Dick Radatz' first pitch into the second deck over Shea Stadium's right field bull pen to square he All-Star series at 17 victories apiece.

After the 1949 game, the AL led 124. The NL has won 13, lost 5 and tied one of the last 19.

The 25-year-old Philadelphia Phillies' outfielder, selected by Alston as the 25th man because of the National League's need for lefthanded pinch hitting strength, had entered the game in the fifth inning, hitting for pitcher Jim Bunning.

"He beat us enough," said Alston, managing his fourth winning All-Star squad in six attempts. "I figured he owed us something."

In a recent series at Los Angeles, Callison hit two home runs in two games against Alston's Dodgers.

Next to Radatz, the most charged man on the American League squad was Manager Al Lopez, who has yet to be on a winning All-Star squad. He lost four times as a manager, twice as a player and three times as a coach.

"To think that before the game I shook hands with Johnny and wished him luck," said Lopez.

It was Lopez, who traded Callison, then a 20-year-old Chicago White Sox hopeful, to the Phillies in the winter of 1959 for third baseman Gene Freese.

Callison said he did not get any special pleasure out of beating his old boss.

"I never faulted Lopez for trading me," he said. "I felt then the deal was good for me because I would have more of an opportunity to play with Philadelphia."

Radatz, Boston's brilliant relief pitcher, was invincible in the seventh and eighth innings when he struck out four of the six batters he faced.

The giant righthander, who has been dubbed "The Monster" by opposing hitters, was nursing a 43 lead when Willie Mays opened the ninth by drawing a walk.

Willie, who had contributed two sparkling plays in the field although going hitless, promptly stole second. Orlando Cepeda singled to short right. Mays, holding up because he feared the ball might be caught, could go only as far as third.

Joe Pepitone, after retrieving the ball, fired it to the plate. The ball skidded past the catcher to the screen and Willie slid across the plate with the tying run. Cepeda took second on the throw.

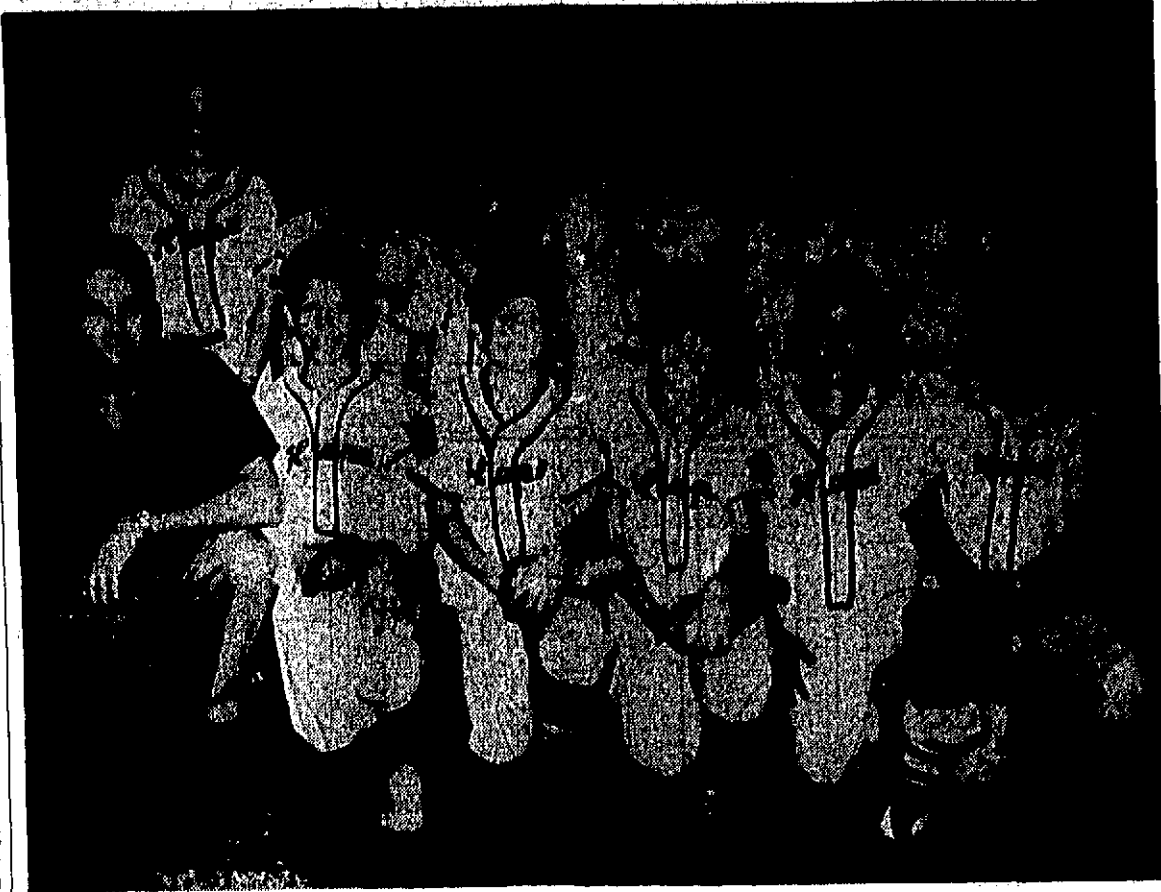

Radatz bore down and disposed of the dangerous Ken Boyer on a popout. He walked John Edwards intentionally before fanny pinch hitter Henry Aaron. Then came the fateful pitch to Callison.

Until the final pitch Radatz, and Kansas City's Rocky Colavito had been the heroes. Robinson, who also contributed a fine fielding play at third base, had put the American Leaguers back in the ball game in the sixth inning. With Philadelphia's Chris Short on the mound, Robinson tripled to right center, driving in two runs to tie the score at 33.

Colavito, a last hour replacement for the injured Al Kaline, doubled as a pinch hitter in the seventh, moving Elston Howard to third. Howard scored the lead run on Jim Fregosi's sacrifice fly.

The victory went to San Fran-

Culture Switch Unneeded

Kenosha, Wis. — Western missionaries in Africa or Asia don't have to adopt local customs entirely in order to establish rapport and confidence among the people, a member of the Lutheran Church in America's board of world missions told a conference here.

Many missionaries have remained "plainly western," said the Rev. Dr. Clarence W. Sorenson, "but by thoughtful concern and dedicated service, have developed with the local people genuine ties of mutual affection."

Indianapolis and Travelers Split Pair

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Costen Shockley's 21st home run of the season started Arkansas to a doubleheader split with Indianapolis here Tuesday night. The Travelers dropped the opener 6-3 and bounced back for a 5-3 triumph in the second game.

Ken Berry hit a grand slam home run in the seventh inning of the short game for the Indians' victory.

Arkansas had led in the game until Berry's clout.

Wayne Graham singled in the sixth inning of the second game, and Shockley's homer put the Travelers ahead to stay.

Singles by Pat Corrales, Graham and Adolpho Phillips helped Arkansas to three more runs in the seventh.

Gary Kroll got his ninth victory against six losses. He left the game in the seventh inning complaining of an arm ailment. Relievers Harry Oliver and Morris Stevens finished up for Arkansas.

Billy Smith took the loss in the first game, for a 7-8 record.

Church against Apartheid
Johannesburg, South Africa — The Evangelical Lutheran Church in Southern Africa, Southeastern Region, has adopted a statement condemning "any form of segregation" or "discrimination based on race, color, or ethnic origin" as "contrary to the will of God and to the gospel."

Apartheid (segregation) is required by law in South Africa.
